PRESS RELEASE

21 February 2007

Announcement of Government White Paper: *Trust, Assurance, Safety: Regulation of Health Professionals in the 21st Century

The Royal College of Radiologists is committed to ensuring the highest standards of practice and education in clinical oncology and clinical radiology are maintained across the UK. It welcomes the White Paper and the recognition that it gives to the important role of medical Royal Colleges in improving medical regulation and patient care.

Professor Janet Husband OBE, President of the Royal College of Radiologists said:

"The Royal College of Radiologists welcomes the White Paper as an initiative that will confirm and build public trust in healthcare professionals. The College looks forward to playing a constructive role in setting the standards and processes of assessment for re-certification. Working in partnership with the Government, regulators, Fellows and members, these developments will benefit patient care."

Notes to editors

1. The Royal College of Radiologists has approximately 7,000 members and Fellows worldwide representing the disciplines of clinical oncology and clinical radiology. All members and Fellows of the College are registered medical or dental practitioners.
2. The role of the College is to advance the science and practice of radiology and oncology, further public education and promote study and research through setting professional standards of practice.
